Dirt Bag, Inc. Battles Dust in the Middle East

October 10, 2006—DirtBag, Inc. is doing its share to assist our overseas military with its recent delivery of over 9,000 PC Dirt Bags to the United States armed forces. These innovative computer dust covers can now be found on computers across the Middle East. DirtBag, Inc. uses patented technology in a special filter designed to protect computers from airborne dust, dirt, and grime—a perfect solution for the sandstorm environments in the Middle East. In such conditions, dust settles on the computer monitor, insulating the components and causing the machine to overheat. Dirt Bags are also useful in wood shops, metal shops, concrete factories, and other dusty environments.

Installed in less than five minutes and lasting up to nine months, the Dirt Bag computer filter cleanses all incoming air, preventing costly maintenance by protecting the computer's power supply, motherboard, and disk drives. For more information, go to www.dirtdbag.biz.
